The New York steamship agents report a better passenger business so far this year than in 1892, which was a banner year.

The American sardine industry is growing. It is one of the infant industries, too, as it wasn't started in this country until 1865.

A man has turned up in New York who refused the offer of a $7,500 office. But it may be incidentally remarked that he already had a better snap.

Dr. Burggeave, Professor of Medicine in the University of Ghent, is 99 years old, but still practices his profession. He uses but little medicine, takes his liquor when he fells like it, and smokes, but doesn't toy with the cigarette.

During last year in this country 336 persons were killed by lightning and 351 severely injured, but this doesn't prevent a score or so of aspiring gentlemen from putting themselves in the way of being hit by Presidential lightning.

A pensioner who went to Boston to draw his pension was knocked down and robbed. The foot-pad not only took all the money he had, but his straw hat and pension papers. If this had occurred in Chicago we would not be surprised; but in Boston; oh, my!

Two of the most drawing preachers at a big revival in Missouri are boys, one 12 and the other 17 years old. The former was born in Kansas, the latter in Illinois, where he is the pastor of the First Baptist Church of Mount Carmel.

Otto Gresham, son of the late Secretary of State, refused the tender of an office made him by the President. He preferred to stick to his law practice. Other young men ought to follow the example of Otto and stick to their business if they have any. It is a poor business that is not better than precarious place holding, the term of which is apt to be short at best unless a fellow is very lucky or stick enough to successfully play double.

The friendly relations between John Robinson, of New York, and Miss Ida Murphy, of the same burg, were abruptly terminated because John essayed to kiss Ida at the first meeting, which was brought about by a newspaper "personal." Ida had John arrested and the kiss cost him $10. He concluded that that would be too expensive a business to follow up and retired.

Under the laws of Oklahoma divorces are secured with facility and dispatch, with little delay and less publicity, for which reason that Territory is becoming the mecca of the connubially dissatisfied who seek release from the bonds that bind. It is said there are a thousand persons now gathered there to skip through the mill.

Mr. F. J. Stanley, who is now in Washington, and has spent several years in China, is not surprised that the Chinese attack American missionaries. They say America was the cause of Japan tackling China and the walloping the Chinese got, and they are getting even by going for the missionaries.

Some of the Republican papers are lecturing President Cleveland for going fishing last Sunday, but as a matter of fact he didn't go fishing last Sunday, and didn't even dig bait. He got up bright and early Monday morning and went while those editors were asleep.

RALEIGH HAPPENINGS.

MINISTER RANSOM IN THE CITY.

En-Route to His Farm in Halifax County—His Health Much Improved—Senator Marion Butler—Honorary Scholarships to North Carolina Students—Fire in Louisburg—The Arrington Court—Capt. Mason's Gubernatorial Boom.

[Star Correspondence.]

RALEIGH, N. C., June 15.

Minister Matthew W. Ransom arrived in the city to-day en-route to his farm in Halifax county. He will spend a day there when he will go to White Sulphur Springs, Va., where he hopes to benefit his health. A press dispatch sent out from Washington this morning states that Mr. Ransom is seriously ill and he will be compelled to relinquish the Mexican mission unless his health improves materially. Mr. Ransom is not seriously ill though he is quite feeble. He tells me his health has improved very much since he reached North Carolina. Mr. Ransom does not look like the sick man the newspapers have made him out. To a close friend Mr. Ransom said he expected to return to Mexico, if living. In a few months the Mexican climate will be more bearable than it now is and it is thought by Minister Ransom's friends that he will be able to remain there without detriment.

Senator Butler arrived in the city this morning from Memphis. He came in a few minutes after Minister Ransom arrived. They both were quartered at the Yarborough, and it was quite noticeable that both of the distinguished gentlemen's signatures were together on the register of the hotel.

Of the twelve honorary scholarships offered by Johns Hopkins University to Virginia and North Carolina students, four of them were given to Wake Forest students. They were E. W. Sikes, Wake Forest; W. A. Jones, Hillsboro; W. B. Daniel, Garysburg; W. A. Montgomery, Jr., Raleigh. The only other North Carolinian who obtained an honorary scholarship was F. S. Wilcox, Lynn, N. C.

It develops that the ordinance passed by the Board of Aldermen at their last meeting taxing country people and others for the privilege of retailing their goods on the streets bounding the market, is unconstitutional. The Code specifically says that it shall not be lawful for town authorities to impose any tax whatever on wagons or carts selling farm products, fish, etc. The new charter gave them no provision for levying the tax. Mayor Russ does not intend to enforce the ordinance. It should have gone into effect to-day.

There was a fire in Louisburg last night which did considerable damage. A Mr. Neal lost his store by fire.

Miss Caroline Litchford, sister of Mr. Henry E. Litchford, cashier of the Citizens' National Bank, is to be married on the 26th of June to Francis Atherton Macon, of Henderson.

Thieves entered the house of Mr. Henry Young last night and stole a number of articles. They also paid their respects to his hen house; a remarkable fact is that they killed the chickens and picked the feathers from them in the yard.

Only one physician and one lawyer have complied with the law in taking out license as required by an act of the last Legislature. Those who have not complied are liable to indictment.

The complaints of Mrs. Arrington have been completed and are in the hands of Chief Justice Campbell. They are voluminous and would fill many volumes.

It is quite early to speculate on the gubernatorial question, but the rapidity with which the boom for Captain Mason is spreading, is to say the least a noteworthy fact. At Wake Forest this week his address was all the talk. The people out there—and they represented many sections of the State—seemed to be a unit for him. Captain Mason is in no way seeking the office, for as everybody knows, there is not a more reticent and unassuming man in North Carolina. Mr. Jule Carr is in the race, and Lieutenant Governor Doughton has a great following who desire to see him Governor of North Carolina.

[Special Star Telegram.]

The case of Goodwin vs. the Caraleigh Phosphate Works, seeking to recover penalty for failure of the company to tag twenty guano sacks, was decided in favor of the plaintiff. Defendants filed a demurrer, setting forth that the Agricultural Department should have been made party plaintiff and the action should have been brought in the name of the State, and that the act under which the action was brought was in violation of both the State and National Constitutions. The demurrer was overruled and defendants appealed to the Superior Court.

Only one lawyer, two physicians and not a single hotel proprietor have taken out license in compliance with the act passed by the last Legislature. They are liable to indictment for doing business without license. The law went into effect March 12th.

Stewart Bros. State Printers, have given the job of binding the State laws to Jenkins & Walthall, Richmond, Va. They are working night and day in order to get the job finished as quickly as possible for every day's delay will cost the Stewart Brothers fifty dollars. Section 3689 of the Code says the laws, abstracts, and journals shall be delivered to the Secretary of State within ninety days after the adjournment of the Legislature, and for failure the State Auditor shall deduct from the account of the State Printer the sum of fifty dollars for each day's delay. Mr Stewart arrived from Winston to-day to investigate the matter.

Quick Schedule to Asheville.

Commencing June 16th, passengers for Asheville can leave Wilmington via the Atlantic Coast Line at 3:30 p. m., arrive at Columbia, South Carolina, 10:00 p. m., spend the night in Columbia, leave Columbia at 5:10 a. m. the following morning via the Southern Railway and arrive at Asheville at 11:00 a. m. Returning, passengers can leave Asheville at 7:30 p. m., arrive at Columbia at 1:50 a. m., spend the night in Columbia, leave Columbia at 5:20 a. m. and arrive at Wilmington at 11:50 a. m.

We would call attention to the ad. of Katz & Polvogt. They have selected a different line of goods to run below value each day of the ensuing week. To-morrow they will reduce their price on silks and dress goods, and will run 5,000 yards of cotton fabrics at 5 cents per yard, worth 10c to 20c per yard. †

BENEDICTS VS. BACHELORS.

An Exciting Game of Base Ball to be Played Next Friday Afternoon for the Benefit of the Shelter of the Silver Cross—The Players and Their Positions.

There will be an exciting game of base ball next Friday afternoon at Hilton between two picked nines; the one composed of some of our young men who are married; the other of those who lack the necessary courage to "take the yoke."

When it is taken into consideration that these players are the same that played that memorable game last year between the "Sons of Rest" and "Sons of Toil," no other inducement need be offered to transfer the populace of Wilmington bodily to the Park, particularly, as this game—as the one of last year—is for the benefit of the "Shelter of the Silver Cross."

The management have gone to considerable expense to secure some star players. Trilby Lawson, of the Baltimore Orioles, will be in the box for the Bachelors, while White Elephant Robertson will occupy this position for the Benedicts. The man who plays to the grand stand only will catch for the Bendicts when they are in the field and do all the talking when they are at the bat. The public will recognize in him Mr. J. C. Wise. Paymaster E. S. Latimer will with his usual energy, agility and avoirdupois hold down third base. The other bases will be held down by the promising players Gerken and Quince, of whom great things are expected. The most vital position of the field—short stop—will be be ably taken care of by that rara avis C. E. Borden. Messrs. Watters, Evans and Turrentine, with Nutt as substitute, will endeavor to be more ornamental than useful in the field. Another grand stand favorite, Nellie Robinson, will try to stop Trilby's phenomenal curves; while Uncle Simon Sanders, Shadow Lippitt, and the august Colonel Bill Jones will hold down the bases respectively with Paint Oil and Putty Chas. at short. If Billy Merritt, Owen Love and Don McRae can muster sufficient energy to walk to the out field, they will stay there until called back.

The management are endeavoring to secure the services of Mr. Heiskell-Gouveneur, and if successful the public may look forward to some brilliant plays.

The colors of the Benedicts will be red and white and the Bachelors blue and white. The partisans of each nine will wear their colors at the game.

Death of Rev. B. H. W. Runge.

The STAR regrets to chronicle the death of Rev. B. H. W. Runge, which took place at 6 o'clock yesterday evening at No. 311 South Fifth street. He was a clever gentleman, 32 years old, was born in Wilmington and known by nearly everybody. He was a machinist in the W. & W. R. R. shops up to the time when he left to study for the Lutheran ministry. He left here about eight years ago to attend school at Mount Pleasant, N. C., and after spending three years there went to the seminary at Philadelphia. After staying there four years he became sick and returned home, where he has gradually grown worse until his death from consumption last night. He was ordained two Sundays ago to the ministry by Rev. K. Boldt, of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, and expected to take charge of his first call in Tennessee next week. He leaves four sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Carl Mugge, Theodore and Willie Runge and Misses Katie and Mamie Runge, one sister in Johnston county and a brother in Columbia.

The funeral will take place at 5 o'clock this afternoon from St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

The Naval Reserves.

The Washington Post of Friday last says: "Assistant Secretary McAdoo, of the Navy, is making arrangements to visit in the Dolphin the coast States having naval militia reserves. It is the intention of Mr. McAdoo to start with North Carolina and go up the coast, stopping at points where the naval reserves muster. The difficulty of making arrangements heretofore has been that the muster of reserves has been at times widely distant and unless there can be some arrangement by which the musters can occur in regular order the Assistant Secretary cannot visit them. Replies thus far received indicate that the musters will be arranged to meet the requirements of such a trip as Mr. McAdoo contemplates.

The Charlotte Observer says that Col. Smith of the North Carolina State Guard "has just finished his report to the Adjutant General in regard to the disquietude between the Newbern Reserves and Lieutenant Commander Winslow. Both made reports to headquarters so widely different that Col. Smith was directed to go and see how matters stood, and to report from an unbiased standpoint."

A Press dispatch to the STAR last night says that Assistant Secretary McAdoo will inspect the naval militia at Baltimore, Md., Monday afternoon, and then, possibly go to Wilmington, N. C., or he may conclude to go from Baltimore to New York and New London.

City Markets.

The markets yesterday were pretty well stocked with vegetables, fruits, poultry and fish, while the butchers' stalls showed good supplies of excellent beef, veal, lamb and pork. Poultry continues in poor supply and prices are rather high for the season. Eggs are fairly plentiful at 12½ cents per dozen.

In the fruit market there were plums at 5 cents per quart; peaches at the same price; strawberries, 12½ cents; blackberries and huckleberries, 5 cents; cantaloupes, 5 to 20 cents apiece.

Soft-shell crabs were sold at 25 to 40 cents per dozen; channel crabs, 10 cents; shrimps, 15 cents per quart; clams and oysters, 12½ to 15 cents per quart.

Housekeepers who want servants are in the habit of supplying their needs from the STAR's want column. Are you looking for a situation? The STAR's want column will bring you the best results. One cent a word. But no ad. taken for less than 20 cents. tf

A BAD FIRE

In Messrs. Chesnutt & Barrentine's Shoe-store—Damage to Stock and Building Estimated at About $20,000—Building Fully Insured—Insurance on Stock $15,000.

Fire was discovered about half-past one o'clock this morning in Messrs. Chesnutt & Barrentine's, shoe-store on North Front street, between Market and Princess. When discovered volumes of smoke were pouring from the windows of the third story of the building, and when the Fire Department reached the scene in response to the rather laggard alarm, the whole of the third floor—the top-story of the building from front to rear—was in flames and the stairway on the second floor was burning. There was considerable delay in forcing the stout doors of the building and in the meantime the fire made rapid progress. About 2 o'clock flames burst through the roof and illumined the streets for squares around, and to all appearances it seemed that Munson's clothing store, adjoining on the north, had caught; but the firemen were then stoutly fighting the flames front and rear, and in a short time had the fire under control and confined to the shoe store.

The second and third stories of the building were completely burned out, but the fire did not reach the first floor.

The cause of the fire is not known. Mr. Barrentine, of the firm, said that nothing was kept on the third floor but empty packing cases and rubbish, but there were many cases of goods on the second floor. The entire stock is practically a total loss, what was not burned being ruined by water. Its estimated value was $18,000 or $20,000, with insurance for $15,000, divided among the agents in the city as follows: With Messrs. Steadman & Worth; $4,000; Joseph D. Smith, $4,000; C. H. Robinson, Jr., $1,000; M. S. Willard, $1,500; Dr. W. W. Harriss, $1,000; J. H. Boatwright, $2,500; Atkinson & Son, $1,500.

The building is owned by Mr. Geo. R. French, and is fully insured.

Mr. French also owns the building occupied by Messrs. Munson & Co., and the building occupied on the ground floor by Mr. C. M. Harris. Neither of these were damaged nor were the goods in these stores injured, so far as could be ascertained last night.

Meetings First Baptist Church.

The meetings at the First Baptist church, which have been so much enjoyed during the past two weeks, will be continued during this week. Rev. Dr. Wharton will take charge this morning, preaching to-day at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m. No one should fail to hear this eminent preacher, whose success in evangelistic work has been wonderful. There will be a prayer and praise meeting this morning at 10.30, in the lecture room. Christians are specially invited to this service. Mr. Oliver asks that all who will sing in the choir during the week will report to him promptly at 11 o'clock this morning.

Buy No Others.

All persons are hereby cautioned against buying copies of the STAR offered for sale on the streets unless, in every case, the words "For Transient Sale" are stamped on the margin of the paper. Should any newsboy or carrier offer for sale a copy of the STAR not so stamped he should be promptly reported at this office.

THE MIDDLE GROUND.

The presumption has been that this is a country in which the majority rules. Theoretically it is, but in practice this presumption has not always been sustained, but on the contrary has been, at least in the last half century, very seldom sustained. The presumption also is that in the great political parties which contend for the supremacy the majority rules. This does not always hold good, for very frequently it is the smaller but more assertive or aggressive faction which controls the party; but it has always been the proud boast of the Democratic party that in it the majority does rule.

Now for the first time in a generation after moving unitedly until it had won the victory for which it had heroically battled for a generation, we see signs of restiveness and a disposition in certain contingencies to ignore the voice of the majority and force the party to accept the dictates of the minority as a condition of fealty and acquiesscence in the decrees of its duly constituted conventions. For the first time men who call themselves Democrats publicly and openly declare that unless the next national convention does so and so, and does what they want it to do, they will repudiate its utterances, and either make a party of their own or fall in under the standards of the Republican party which they had been fighting all their lives, provided that party act more to their liking on one issue which has for some time been engaging the attention of the American people.

In an interview recently Hon. W. C. Whitney, of New York, declared that unless the next national Democratic convention pronounced for "sound money," that is, declared itself in favor of the present monetary system, it would be split in two, which means that the minority will secede, and run candidates of its own. Mr. Whitney is a very distinguished Democrat, was Secretary of the Navy under Mr. Cleveland's first administration, and has been prominently mentioned as a candidate for the party in 1896. His utterances are therefore more than the utterances of an ordinary individual, and are the more significant on account of his standing in the party.

Col. Henry Watterson, of Louisville, said recently that it depended upon the Democrats themselves whether they carried Kentucky at the next election or not, for if they adopted a free silver platform there were 40,000 "sound money" Democrats who would refuse to vote with the party, but would in preference vote with the Republican party. These are two simple utterances coming from two distinguished Democrats on one side of the silver question.

Hon. Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, one of the leading Democrats in the West, said in a speech at Jackson, Miss., a few days ago that, although he had been reared a Democrat and had never been anything else, if the next Democratic convention adopted a gold platform, he would die in his tracks before he would vote the ticket. Others more or less prominent in the party's councils have made substantially the same declaration, that is, unless the majority of the convention accepted their terms, they would secede and nominate candidates of their own. These are representative men and doubtless express the views of others whom they represent, but simmered down it simply means that unless the majority consents to be governed in the convention by the minority, the minority will withdraw and go into business on its own account. That is not the kind of Democracy we used to have in this country, and that we were all proud of.

The silver issue is a great one, and a very important one. But is not a new one. We have had it in some shape for twenty-odd years, and Democrats have accepted the declarations of their conventions on that as they have on the tariff and other questions in which individual Democrats might differ. Democrats have differed on the tariff and differ now, but the Democrat who would desert the party and go over to the Republican party because the Democratic party didn't go far enough on the line of protection to suit him would be looked upon as a renegade.

But the fact that the more outspoken of the representative men on the respective sides of the silver question hint at a possible division of the party and predict it in a certain contingency shows the necessity of avoiding this contingency and looking for some middle ground of safety. The line of safety is in conservatism and in mutual concession. If unlimited free coinage is to drive gold standard Democrats into a party by themselves, and the gold standard is to drive silver men into a party by themselves, then the men who desire the life of the Democratic party and believe it is good for the country that it should live should seek the half way ground between unlimited silver and autocratic gold, a half way ground where they can recognize both gold and silver without surrendering to either. This half way ground is limited coinage, which will remonetize silver, and State banks, which will supply the local demand for money which now gives emphasis to the demand for unlimited coinage.

MINOR MENTION.

A number of the negro emigrants who left Savannah some time ago, under the auspices of the African Colonization Society, have returned to this country sufficiently amused with their experience in Liberia. One of their objections was the climate, which they said did not agree with the health of the immigrants. It was reported on the arrival of the party which sailed in the Horsa from Savannah, that those of them who needed it were supplied with provisions to last them for some time, and thus they were started out in their new field. Very few of them were fixed for such a venture as that, and were, as usual in such cases, influenced by the representations that were made by agents of the Society, and knew really nothing about what they were doing, and nothing about the country to which they were going, and it was therefore natural to expect that this venture would prove a failure, as many similar ones had before. But the colored people seem to learn nothing from the experience of others, if the know of the experience, and impulsively become the easy dupes and victims of the sharp, glib-tongued men who go among them and draw fanciful pictures of the bright future in store for those who shuck out their little cash and follow them. On the representations of such men considerable numbers of negroes from Alabama, Mississippi and other States went to Mexico some time ago, where those of them who have not been able to beat their way back are leading a wretched existence. There may be some countries in which the negro might be better off than the Southern portion of the United States, but they haven't been discovered up to this writing.

It is all well enough to invite and welcome capital from other countries, but there are certain kinds of investments which should not be permitted, much less encouraged. One of these is the buying up and holding of large bodies of land by foreign capitalists and the other the buying up and holding of mineral properties for speculative purposes. Millions of acres of land, some of it our best farming and timber lands, are now owned by Europeans, some of whom never saw and never expect to see this country. Non-resident Englishmen already own over 20,000,000 acres, Hollanders 5,000,000 and Germans 2,000,000, making a total of 27,000,00 acres owned by a few people of these three countries, which, if in one body, would be but little smaller than the State of North Carolina, and much larger than a number of States in the Union. The price for which these lands were purchased was in most cases merely nominal, and there is no compensating benefit for the sale or sacrifice made. With other objections it establishes a system of landlordism in this country which should be frowned upon, and deprives our own people of land which will be necessary for their comfort and prosperity as the population increases and the unoccupied lands are taken up. Our lands should be the inheritance of our own people, and be preserved as such, except in cases where people come to settle upon them in good faith, to make their homes and cast their destiny with us.

According to the report of the Director of the U. S. Mint the world's production of gold and silver last year exceeds that of any other year in the history of mining. The increase in the production of gold has been much larger than that of silver, South Africa leading, Australia following, and the United States coming third. While the United States rank third in gold production they rank first in the production of silver. The production of gold may and probably will be increased in this country as the methods of working the ores are improved and new discoveries are made, but if one half what is claimed for South Africa be true that will be the future great gold field of the world. English ownership or influence controls that. England owns no silver territory worth speaking of, and consequently England is not interested in keeping up the value silver, but is interested in keeping up the value of gold, while this country is interested in keeping up the value of both, but especially of silver, of which she is the world's greatest producer and will continue to be for some years to come. What business sense is there in a policy that plays into the hands of the English gold producers, and freezes out the metal which would add many millions annually to our wealth if we did not insanely discriminate against it at the dictation of powers whose interest it is to depreciate it?

CURRENT COMMENT.

—— The suspicion is growing in some quarters that there are two sides to the brick in Grandpa's hat. One side is gold and the other silver. —St. Louis Republic, Dem.

—— The attention of our esteemed Republican contemporaries is called to the fact that not only has the Administration succeeded in undoing the blunders of its predecessor, with the result of an increased and still increasing activity in business the country over, but it has also manipulated the Treasury deficit into what will be at the end of the present month an excess of two or three millions of dollars over the expenditures —a happy condition of affairs not reached in any one month for several years. If this be Democratic bungling and incompetency, the country will be thankful for a little more of the same.—Philadelphia Record, Dem.

—— If the question of international bimetallism upon a ratio to be agreed upon by Europe and America could be submitted to the business men of the city of New York—bankers, brokers, merchants, managers of large corporations and professional men—it would be adopted by not less ten to one. It would be opposed by two classes: First, the rabid silver men, who think bimetallism would not be enjoyable if shared by other nations, and second, the rabid monometallists, who do not think that a common agreement among the nations to open their mints to the free coinage of both metals at a fixed ratio would raise the price of silver or make "sound money" of it.—New York Journal, Dem.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

— Rocky Mount Argonaut: A new vein of good ore was struck at the Mann-Arrington mines a few days ago. On account of a slight cave in the work has been retarded so that the true value and size of the vein cannot be estimated.

— Rockingham Rocket. The fine plantation formerly owned and operated by Diggs & Ledbetter in Wolf Pit township, was sold last Tuesday under foreclosure proceedings last Tuesday. Mrs. Ann C. Leak was the purchaser at a price of $13,000. It is one of the best farms in the county.

— Charlotte News: Mr. Hugh M. Parks, one of the oldest and most prominent citizens of Mecklenburg, who had been ill for some weeks, died at his home in Pineville township yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. His death was the result of rheumatism of the heart. Mr. Parks was 70 years old.

— Raleigh Visitor: During the year just ended there were 246 cadets on the roll at the A. and M. College. The greatest number ever actually present at one time was 206. During the year 87 were dropped, having failed to pass examinations or having to return home. The next senior class will be a small one, with only about 10 members, but the junior class will be very large.

— Cleveland Star: We learn from the Progressive Reformer that the sulphur mine located near King's Mountain has resumed work. They shut down as there were no orders to justify a continuance, but the orders are now coming in in a satisfactory manner, so work has begun anew. One of the orders now on hand is from Atlanta and for 2,800 tons of ore.

— Durham Herald: A travelling man was in town last night who was in Winston at the time of the hotel sensation. The boarders were seated at the table and had about finished their meal, when a drummer said to one of the waiters, in a jocular way: "Of course this is the ice that was packed around the corpse." "Who tole yer, boss," was the reply that made him sick way down to his feet. Several of the waiters were then questioned, all of whom declared that the ice was the same that was packed around the corpse. An indignation meeting was held, which was attended by all the boarders, at which the maid who was in the room with the corpse, testified as to the correctness of the waiters' statement. This was the dose that refused to go down, and the boarders left, and hence the assignment.

— Kinston Free Press: Saturday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, Mr. James Daly, 17 years old, son of Mr. James W Daly, who lives five miles from Kinston, between here and Institute, was drowned at the old gunboat, about a mile down the river from Kinston. He came to town with his father and went off with two boys, Messrs. Herman and Herbert Bell, to go in swimming. Only one of the boys was in with him at the time of the drowning. He swam across the river and in attempting to swim back, it is supposed, he exhausted his strength. —— Two sons of Isaac Taylor (colored) of near Coahoma, this county, nearly killed their father on June 4th. They had run away from home and were working in Jones county. He went after them, but they evaded him. He heard they were were sleeping in an outhouse and went there before day and broke in the door on them, when one of them hit him on the head with an axe. He was badly injured and may die.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N. Dykeman, Druggist, Catskill, says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best Cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it. JUST TWO KINDS OF PEOPLE.

BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

There are two kinds of people on earth to-day
Just two kinds of people, no more, I say.

Not the sinner and saint, for 'tis well understood
The good are half bad, and the bad are half good.

Not the rich and the poor, for to count a man's wealth
You must first know the state of his conscience and health.

Not the humble and proud, for in life's little span
Who puts on vain airs is not counted a man.

Not the happy and sad, for the swift flying years
Bring each man his laughter and each man his tears.

No; the two kinds of people on earth I mean,
Are the people who lift, and the people who lean.

Wherever you go, you will find the world's masses
Are always divided in just these two classes.

And oddly enough you will find, too, I ween
There is only one lifter to twenty who lean.

In which class are you? Are you easing the load
Of overtaxed lifters who toil down the road?

Or are you a leaner, who lets other bear
Your portion of labor and worry and care?

Pawning a Shilling.

A story is told of an ingenious trick by which a shilling was made to double its value. Unhappily, the trick was not quite an honest one. A drinking party at a "pub" found themselves reduced to their last shilling. One of the party suddenly said, "Give it to me, and I will double it." He took it to a neighboring pawnshop, where the amused broker lent him tenpence, writing at his request, "A piece of silver plate," on the ticket. Returning to the barroom, the tenpence was soon drunk off, and then this ticket was produced. Mine host was asked to purchase it for a shilling's worth of ale, and he willingly did so, thinking that the conviviality of his customer had made him not overwise. The ale was drunk, and the party left.

By and by mine host thought he would realize his property, and carried his ticket to the pawnshop. His surprise was hardly equaled by his gratification when he found what the "piece of silver plate" consisted of.—Liverpool Mercury.

Rain From a Clear Sky.

Professor Russell, who has made scientific inquiry into nearly 100 instances of rain and snow falls from the clear sky, says that he has found that in the majority of such instances the fall took place on the southwest side of an area of low barometer at a distance of about 500 miles from its center. Two noted instances of the kind under consideration, one of snow and the other of rain, have received much attention from the meteorologists. The first was a snowstorm from a clear sky at Bloomington, Ills., March 15, 1885, in which the ground was covered to the depth of an inch; the second, a heavy shower of rain at Vevay, Ind., on the afternoon of June 30, 1877. In neither case was there a single cloud visible.—St. Louis Republic.

"And what did he do?"

"He put the money in his purse."—Noticiero Bilbaino.

The Difference.

"Here's another one of those millionaire plumber jokes in the paper," said Criticus. "Did you ever see a rich plumber, Hicks?"

"Never," said Hicks. "All the plumbers I've seen have been very poor plumbers. Still, a fellow may be a poor plumber and yet be a rich man."—London Standard.

THE STORY OF THE NEST.

Wooing, Mating, Hatching and Teaching the Young Birds to Fly.

From the humming bird to the eagle the daily existence of every bird is a remote and bewitching mystery. The bird is our little brother, and it is only during the nesting period that we can study his domestic life and keep the married couple under close investigation. The nest differs from our home in the fact that it is solely a nursery, for the moment the nestling can fly the world is his home, any comfortable twig is a bedroom and a spray of leaves a shelter. He lunches wherever he meets his prey and whenever he feels hungry and thus needs no dining room with its accompanying kitchen and storeroom. In bird life at nesting time, which is the courting time of our bird friends, they are in great contradistinction to ourselves. It is the male that plumes himself out in his most gorgeous plumage, while the bride, as a rule, wears a dingy dress. But there are fights among the birds for their brides, often alienation of affection and sometimes murder. There are, too, in birds the spinsters and bachelors, who look on with cold contempt at the quarrels of the youngsters, many of whom to charm or win a bride sing their sweetest songs and dance or drum with their wings. As a rule, the female bird selects the site for the nest, and in many cases she is alone the architect, while the male bird simply aids her with his song and brings her food.

That many birds return to the same nesting place year after year is undoubted. This is true of the swallow, building its small earthen home under our eaves, and most particularly noticeable with the rooks, who are most conservative. An authentic story is told of a family of rooks who had for centuries built their nests in a cathedral close in England when a pair had the radical temerity to select a tree in the neighboring barrack yard. The whole parliament of rooks of that colony were called together, and with many caws discussed the subject on the cathedral green. An almost gray headed rook took the floor, and it was evidently decided that the barrack tree should be looked upon as a colony, for the birds were allowed to build there in peace.

In hatching the brood there is a great difference among birds. The ruby throated humming bird never comes near the nest, just caroling away in the near vicinity. The song sparrows, however, take turn and turn about on the nest, and this is true about many other birds. It is generally said that birds give up all care of their young as soon as they are fledged. This is absolutely incorrect. The parent bird gives the first lessons in flying as carefully as do we in seeing our children toddle across the floor.

When the young bird has miscalculated the distance from bough to bough and fluttered to the ground, the parents are as solicitous over the fall as any mother over the tumble of her babe, and with encouraging bird talk make the youngster jump to some perch and not infrequently actually carry him there. Young birds, like young children, are often indiscreet, and the young mocking bird is one of the most obstreperous of fledgelings, causing his parents an infinity of trouble. They climb out of their nests days before they can fly and are an easy prey to their many enemies, especially man, but are guarded and fed to the utmost by their parents.

In the nesting time, especially when the young are hatched, birds use the strangest ways to keep an enemy away from the home of the brood.

There has been and is still a crusade against almost every bird by the farmer and fruitgrower, and their nests are ruthlessly destroyed or robbed. If these people would really learn that it is the bird that saves their crops and their orchards by killing hundreds of thousands of insects that would eat up everything, our little brothers would be far more plentiful and crops of all sorts far more abundant.—Lecture by Mrs. Olive Thorne Miller.

Mexican Courtship.

A Mexican girl is courted by a unique process. Her would be lover walks up and down the street on the opposite side and stares at her window by the hour. If his appearance is agreeable, she appears at the window after a few days of this performance. When the acquaintance develops, he is introduced to her papa, and after the necessary marriage arrangements have been made he is introduced to her. The preliminary tramping and staring are called "doing the bear."

Burnbrae's Prayer.

"Almichty Father, we are a' thy puir an sinfu' bairns, wha wearied o' hame and gaed awa' intae the far country. Forgive us, for we didna ken what we were leavin or the sair heart we gied oor Father. It wes weary wark tae live wi' oor sins, but we wad never hev come back had it no been for oor elder brither. He cam' a long road tae find us, and a sore travail he had afore he set us free. He's been a gude brither tae us, and we've been a heavy chairge tae him. May he keep a firm hand o' us, and guide us in the richt road, and bring us back gin we wander, and tell us a' we need tae know till the gloamin come. Gither us in then, we pray thee, and a' we luve, no a bairn missin, and may we sit doon for ever in oor ain father's house. Amen."—"Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush."

The Income Tax.

Hicks—What do you think of the income tax?

Wicks—If you mean the way my wife taxes me with neglect when I come in from club late at night, I must say that I do not think very much of it.—Boston Transcript.

Shoes In Japan.

Japanese shoes vary for the use. Mud stilts four inches high keep them up in sloppy weather. Wooden clogs are ordinarily used, but big straw sandals, costing only a cent or so a pair, are used in walking or mountain climbing.

Emerald Blood.

There was a crowd on the street corner below a skyscraper in course of erection. A painter had let his pot of green paint fall, and the emerald liquid now streaked the sidewalk gorgeously. About this a crowd of idlers had gathered. A newcomer, trying to push his way to the unseen magnet of attention, met a man equally eager to get out and accosted him, "What's it all about?" "Nothing much," said the other. "Just an Irishman had a hemorrhage."—Vanity Fair.

THE LATEST LULLABY.

Rock a bye, baby, my little sweet man,
Go to sleep, darling, as fast as you can;
For mother must hasten to don a new gown
And put in her vote for the good of the town.

Your mother's a voter; now, man child, be still,
And hush up your screaming, so piercing and shrill;
For be it known, man child, the time has come when
Your mother can vote with the manness of men.

Now lie where I put you all safe in your bed,
And don't you dare wriggle a hand or a head,
While I go with my new silk and stylish capote,
Oh, man child, the rapture, to cast my first vote.

Mammy is a voter,
A voter proud is she,
And she will cast her ballot
With the foremost of the free,
And a brave and honest voter
Forever she will be!

LIMPY JIM.

The Leadville stage pulled out of Webster station one evening after supper with 12 "pilgrims" for the city in the clouds. Webster was the end of the track, and the route from there to the carbonate camp lay over the summit of Kenosha mountain, through the northern end of the South park and across the famous Red hill, a doubly significant title by reason of the color of the soil and the bloody murders committed there by the Mexican bandits, the Espinosas. From Red hill the road again enters the South park, passes through the old town of Fairplay, once boisterous with the gayety of pioneer gold diggers.

Red hill was the danger point on the first division of the road. Near the summit is a little basin, where the road is completely hidden from view on all sides. Little gulches lead up to this spot from the South park, affording every opportunity for road agents to reach the place unseen and to likewise make their escape. "Pilgrims" for Leadville usually were supplied with money, and a great deal of wealth originally intended for investment in the carbonate camp was turned over to gentlemanly persons who encountered the stage in the little basin on Red hill.

The individual who sat on the dusty old Concord coach and pulled the ribbons over six bronchos between Webster and Fairplay was known as Jim. I made his acquaintance while we were at dinner in the rough board "eating house" at Webster. He was a tall, slim, muscular man, with a swarthy complexion, dark eyes and a heavy mustache, black as jet from the copious use of dye. He wore high topped boots, with extremely high heels, and his feet were small and delicately shaped. His trousers were of gorgeous plaid material, but the bottoms were worn inside his boot tops. A wide brimmed white slouch hat was cocked rakishly on the side of his head. Some garish jewelry adorned the front of his waistcoat. There was a jaunty air about him which was less pronounced by reason of the stiff and awkward way he carried his arms. I attributed this to the natural effect of driving six spirited horses for years over a mountain road.

He had formerly been a gentleman of fortune, and at one time in his career had amassed a considerable sum of money in the game of chance known as draw poker. When he was at the height of his prosperity, another gentleman of fortune, late of Texas, drifted unostentatiously into camp and caused the report to be circulated that he was aching for a game. Jim undertook to relieve the gentleman of the pain he was suffering on that account, and they met in the back room of Uncle Billy Coleman's Palace of Fashion, on Main street.

There was a slight controversy in the early part of the game, caused by a remark of Jim's to the effect that "people from Texas seemed to have more luck than a Chinaman."

The gentleman from Texas demurred to this and said there was no such thing as luck in draw poker. The chance features of the game, he said, had all been eliminated by the application of skill and science. He then proceeded to demonstrate his assertion, which he did to perfection. At the end of six hours Jim's earthly possessions consisted of the suit of clothes he was wearing. Everything else he had owned in the world had passed into the hands of the skillful and scientific gentleman from Texas.

The Fairplay gambler arose from the table and relieved himself of some choice profanity, most of which was directed against himself. He declared that he was "better qualified to drive a stage than to pose as a gentleman of fortune." The superintendent of the stage line, who was present, jocosely offered Jim a job, and the penniless gambler in a spirit of bravado accepted it and declared then and there that he would never touch the "pasteboards" again as long as he lived.

The gentleman from Texas took his departure as unostentatiously as he had come, but leaving behind him in his room at the hotel a peculiar wire and elastic contrivance which puzzled the brain of the landlord to determine its use. Several persons to whom he exhibited it declared they had never seen anything like it before, but Jim at once recognized it as a contrivance known as a holdout, by means of which a player retained cards in his possession, secreted in his sleeves, which should be in the deck. The phenomenal "hands" held by the gentleman from Texas were no longer a mystery to Jim. He now understood that it was not "Chinaman's luck" that had beaten him, but this little contrivance, worn under the clothing, by the operation of which all elements of chance were eliminated from draw poker and the game reduced to a "dead moral certainty." It was true, as the gentleman from Texas had remarked, that luck cut no figure in the play. It was a question of skill and science.

As Jim was the only person in Fairplay who had anything like an intimate acquaintance with the scientist from Texas, the landlord presented him with the little implement that had worked the former's financial ruin. Jim's first impulse was to secrete the holdout upon his person and seek revenge upon the unsuspecting miners in the gulch, but he remembered that he had hired himself to the stage company and forsworn gambling. He was a man of his word, and a stage driver he became. It was a monotonous life until the road agents began to pay frequent visits to the line, and Jim liked it. The only thing that disturbed his serenity was the recollection of the gentleman from Texas. If he could but once meet that scientist face to face, life would take on new charms for him.

I had a seat beside Jim on the Leadville coach, and as the horses crawled slowly up the grade of Kenosha mountain, preparatory to a wild dash down the other side into the South park, I remarked to him that it was going to be a pleasant night. He replied that you never could tell much about nights in that country until the next day; he had seen nights just as promising as this one turn out real bad before daybreak. The very best of meteorological predictions were likely to fail in a country so thickly infested with gentlemen of the road.

I expressed a desire to have a view of Red hill as we crossed that famous elevation, and wondered if the moon would be down before we got there. Jim vouchsafed the information that the moon would be up, but added that he had known of people's appetite for scenery being permanently destroyed by gazing on Red hill by moonlight.

I was sound asleep with my head on Jim's shoulder when he nudged me and said:

"We're going up Red hill now. Help yourself to the scenery, and if you've got any valuables about you you'd better hide them. We're liable to see more things than scenery."

Then the horses came to a sudden stop, and Jim and I were looking down the muzzle of a revolver in the steady hand of a horseman beside the wheelers.

"Will you step down for a moment, driver?" asked the gentleman on horseback.

Jim replied that he was just thinking of getting down, as he was tired of sitting. I followed him and took my place beside him in time to see the other passengers descend one by one from the inside of the coach with their hands above their heads and take a place in line beside us.

There were but two of the road agents. While one of them relieved the passengers of their weapons and all articles of value the other was in the front boot of the stage securing the treasure box.

When the first robber came opposite to Jim, he drew back in surprise, exclaiming, "Well, I'll be hanged!"

For a second only he was off his guard, but that brief space of time was a fatal one. A pistol cracked, and he fell shot through the head.

"Bang, crack!" went two more shots. Both took effect. The second road agent reeled and fell from the boot of the stage, and Jim was lying beside the first robber. It was the big six shooter of the man on the stage that had answered Jim's first shot, and it was the crack of a derringer that had terminated the brief battle.

Jim was wounded in the leg. A young doctor in the party stanched the flow of blood, and we proceeded on our way with the bodies of the two bandits thrown into the hind boot.

The shooting was shrouded in mystery so far as the passengers were concerned. They had seen Jim's six shooter taken from his holster by one of the bandits, after which a careful search had been made to see that he had no other weapon, but when we picked him up a derringer was clasped in either hand. The question was how had he managed to conceal them and bring them into use at such an opportune time? The mystery was solved when his clothing was removed at the hotel in Fairplay. Under his waistcoat was the wire and elastic poker holdout formerly belonging to the gentleman from Texas. The nippers for holding the cards had been removed, and a circular clasp large enough to securely hold the handle of a derringer had been attached in their place. The gentleman to whom the contrivance originally belonged was in the hind boot. His surprise upon recognizing Jim accounted for his presence there.

Jim's leg was broken, and the doctor informed him that when he recovered that leg would be shorter than the other; that he would always limp when he walked.

"It's all my own fault," said Jim.

"I don't see how you can make that out."

"Well, it was this way: When I let the derringers down into my hands, I calculated to shoot the man on the boot with the gun in my right hand an take the nighest feller with my left, but just then I recognized him as the gent I was mostly seekin after, a gent from Texas who skinned me out o' my pile with this yere hold out, an, doc, the temptation was too great. I give it to him with my right, an it took me too long to get a bead on the other one. But, say, doc, this science is a great thing."—Chicago Times.

Lighting Up In Parliament.

Every part of the house of commons is now lighted by electricity. In Cromwell's time the commons appear to have entertained strong objections to debates by artificial light. A Sir William Widdrington brought in two candles against the direction of the house and was sent to the Tower next morning. An interruption to debate was sometimes caused by a motion that candles be brought in. A standing order was passed in 1717 empowering the sergeant-at-arms to bring in candles without any particular order. This order has been superseded by the instantaneous illumination of the house at the proper time, at first by gas and subsequently by electricity.—London Letter.

Thackeray's Joke.

While Thackeray was delivering in Boston his lectures on the "Four Georges" he was a constant guest of Mr. George Ticknor, the author of a work on Spanish literature. Though the two men were great cronies, they disagreed on many a point.

Ticknor was small, but combative. Thackeray towered above him and generally managed to have the last word. Mr. Healy, in his "Reminiscences of a Portrait Painter," tells a good story of Thackeray's humorous way of ending a discussion.

The discussion had been very lively—it was about some point in history—when Thackeray, suddenly putting a hand on each shoulder of his host and looking down upon him, exclaimed:

"It would never do for two such broken nosed old coves as we are to fall out and quarrel."

A general laugh ended the dispute. Thackeray, when a boy, had his nose broken by accident, whereas Ticknor, by a freak of nature, had a queer little pug nose that had a broken look.—Youth's Companion.

New Seafaring Lingo.

Manchester folk are not yet posted in seafaring lingo. Thus a Manchester ship canal hand was overheard shouting at the top of his voice to a captain:

"Are you bringing in the blunt end or the sharp end of that ship?"

Another, wishing to stop a ship, ran along the quay, crying out:

"Whoa, whoa!"—Liverpool Mercury.

Gallant ship and gallant sailor.

Now the ship, the sailor and the album are all deep in the North sea. The verses were written Sept. 27, 1894.—Philadelphia Times.

A BAG OF MYSTERY.

IT UPSET THE EQUILIBRIUM OF A CARLOAD OF BROOKLYNITES.

The Peace of Mind Which the Resident of Brooklyn Puts on With His Sunday Clothes Greatly Disturbed by the Strange Young Man's Actions.

There was an odd little episode in a Brooklyn trolley car of the Flatbush line on a recent Sunday afternoon, which gave rise to an amusing comedy of conflict between the natural curiosity of human nature and the civilized obligation to restrain it.

The Flatbush and Flatlands line runs away out into the region of cornfields, truck farms and forests, lately gathered into Brooklyn's municipal area. When the car started from the end of the route it had aboard one passenger, a pleasant faced young man who carried a large leather handbag. He was well dressed, but his clothes were covered with dust and his shoes with mud, suggesting that he had been roaming across lots in the rural wards. As the car approached and passed Prospect park it filled up with Sunday strollers.

The young man sat beside the stove, with his bag on his knees. After awhile he opened the bag a trifle, shook it gently and peered attentively inside. Then he put his hand in and seemed to be gently stirring up its contents. The passengers sitting directly opposite to him became interested in his doings, but he didn't look up. After shaking the bag from side to side for a little while he bent over and became interested in some mysterious business which for the rest of the trip absorbed his entire attention and also that of his fellow passengers.

He reached down into the bag with his right hand, lifted out something carefully in the hollow of his palm, weighed it carefully, held it to his ear, shook it, held it to his ear again and then decisively reached around and put it into his overcoat pocket. Then he reached into the bag again and went through the same motions, except that this time he placed the something carefully in one corner of the bag. First one and then another of the passengers became interested in the young man and his performance until very soon every one was peering closely, some almost painfully, over at him and his bag. But he never looked up. By and by the conductor came in and walked nervously the length of the car several times, peering into the young man's bag as he passed. But the bag was open only a trifle, and he could see nothing of its contents. He went outside and discussed the matter with a man who stood on the platform.

The young man, intensely absorbed in his performances and seemingly altogether oblivious of the intense interest of the other passengers in him, kept steadily on, lifting out invisible somethings, weighing them, listening to them, shaking them and sorting them over. Once in awhile he lifted out bits of twigs and leaves and threw them on the floor. The passengers eyed them over attentively, but could make nothing out of them. Soon they began whispering one to another about the mysterious doings of the young man, and the women moved nervously around, and one or two men looked as though they were determined to ask the young man for an explanation if he looked up. But he didn't look up. Once in awhile a passenger got out and tried hard to peer into the bag as he passed it, but uselessly. The situation was painful and was also intensely comical to one passenger who was almost as much interested in watching the ill concealed curiosity and strained nervousness of the passengers as in trying to fathom the mystery of the young man's performance. Probably if it had been any other day than Sunday some one would have plucked up courage to ask a simple although maybe impertinent question and so relieve the general strain. But the restraint imposed by Sunday clothes held every one back.

Finally when the car was entering Fulton street, the young man suddenly looked out of the window, closed the bag with a nap and hurried out of the car. There was a movement on the part of the other passengers, partly of alarm at the escape of the young man with the mystery unsolved and partly perhaps of relief at the end of the suspense. One man made a quick jump after the mysterious young man and caught him for a few seconds as he was about to leave the car.

"What've y' got? Whatcher doing?" he asked, regardless of all proprieties.

The young man looked surprised and then smiled and said:

"Oh, cocoons, chrysalides, moths, you know. I've been gathering them out in the country, and I sell them to the naturalists." Then he jumped off the car.

The impulsive, inquisitive man returned to his seat, and the remaining passengers were eagerly waiting for him. He explained that the young man was a naturalist or naturalist's collector. He evidently made a business of going around the country hunting over the fences and bushes for the chrysalides, or pupæ, of moths and butterflies. Some of these are attached to fence pickets, but perhaps the greater number are found on leave or twig. They look like balls of silk usually, but often are covered with dust, dead leaves and such matter. The collector simply gathered everything into his bag and then sorted them out later. Some of the cocoons are empty, and these he could tell sometimes by their light weight, but more certainly by shaking them. The pupa is usually loose and rattles inside the cocoon. The empty shells he put into his coat pocket, the live pupæ he sorted out according to size or perhaps by peculiarities which distinguished their character.

It seemed a curious business, but yet it wasn't quite so odd as the comical perplexity in which it kept about a score of Brooklynites.—New York Sun.

Prize Fighting Among Fish.

One of the popular amusements of Siam is fish fighting, just as horse racing holds a high place in England.

The two fighting fish are placed in a huge bottle together, and they proceed to take each other's measure, shoulder up to each other in schoolboy fashion and back and push around the "ring," the small fins vibrating rapidly all the time, and each little being quivering with excitement and wrath. This goes on for some minutes, until, as the spectators are growing impatient, one fish suddenly makes a dart and a bite at his adversary's tail. Henceforth there is no hesitation until one or other gives in.

The Siamese back their fish just as money is staked on horses here, and then the battle is continued until one fish is chased around the bottle by the other. But this is usually an affair of an hour and frequently three or four. The fish are reared specially for fighting and display wonderful pluck and determination.

The tail is the part which shows most damage, although it is very easily torn, but a good grip on the side fin is very effective. They display considerable agility in evading their opponent's mouth and also in suddenly twisting round and taking a piece out of its tail. In 20 minutes or so these appendages, which looked so brave and bright as they started to the fray, are torn to ribbons.—Times of India.

THE CAROLINA MUTUAL

Fire Insurance Company,

of Charlotte, N. C.

The CAROLINA MUTUAL is a strong NORTH CAROLINA Company. It is, however, a stock company, and issues absolutely non-participating and non-assessable policies. Its mutual feature consists in a charter provision, that one-third of its directors must be POLICY-HOLDERS who are NOT stockholders elected by the POLICY-HOLDERS; this is a very strong point, the policy-holders who have great interests at stake, have a share in the management of the Company, and will always know its condition. Better than this, the CAROLINA MUTUAL deposits all premiums received at this agency to their credit with the WILMINGTON SAVINGS AND TRUST COMPANY. This makes it practically a local company. The directors of the company are:

P. M. BROWN, Of Brown, Weddington & Co., Wholesale Hardware.
E. B. SPRINGS, Of E. B. Springs & Co., Fertilizers and Wagons.
M. P. PEGRAM, Cash'r First Nat'l Bank of Charlotte.
B. D. HEATH, Of Heath Brothers, Bankers.

A. C. SUMMERVILLE, Lumber and Real Estate.
J. T. ANTHONY, Wholesale Provisions and Grain.

Things We Understand, And Things We Do Not Understand.

The Depositor in the

Wilmington Savings and Trust Company

Does not understand how the decline in price of silver since 1873 caused the price of cotton to decline, when the price of cotton declined more rapidly for several years before '73 (when silver did not decline materially) than after '73, and was lower several years before the war than at present, though silver was twice as high at that time as it is at present. The same depositor does understand that his money in the draws interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, compounded quarterly. He is therefore provided with a good Umbrella when the "rainy day" comes.

—THE—

Wilmington Savings and Trust Company,

Has the largest capital of any strictly Savings Bank in North Carolina, and is fortified with a good percentage of surplus for the protection of depositors. This Bank invites investigation, and wishes to see every mechanic, wage-earner, salaried man and all others, keep a Savings Bank account and save something each week.

The Morning Star.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 16, 1895

SPOTS AND FUTURES

New York Sun's Review of the Market — Total Visible Supply of Cotton

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, June 15.—The Sun says: Cotton fell four points, but rallied and closed steady at a net decline of only one to two points. The sales were 106,800 bales. Spot cotton was 1-16 lower, at 7 3-16c for middling uplands, with sales of 25 bales for spinning. Liverpool declined 1-32d on the spot, with sales of 7,000 bales for spinning. Futures declined two to two and a half points and closed barely steady. New Orleans declined six to seven points and then recovered most of the loss. Port receipts 917 bales, against 3,162 this day last week and 1,668 last year. Port exports 1,635 bales to Great Britain. The Southern spot markets were generally all quiet and unchanged. Baltimore declined 1-16. The Chronicle states that Northern spinners have taken thus far this season 1,909,907 bales, against 1,480,668 thus far last season. The quantity brought into sight this week was 16,807 bales, against 19,157 in the same week last year. Total in sight 9,587,132 bales, against 7,282,388 thus far last season. The total visible supply of the world is now 3,554,755 bales, including 3,111,555 American, against 3,114,000 last year, of which 2,512,990 were American. The exports thus far this season are 6,557,765 bales, against 4,999,579 thus far last season.

To-day's features: The early transactions were at a decline, owing partly to lower prices in Liverpool, partly to rather favorable reports from many sections of the South and partly to local, Southern and European selling. But later on prices regained most of the loss, owing to rains in Texas, local covering and renewed buying for long account by operators who have been waiting for a decline in order to reinvest. The rains in Texas were in some cases heavy, Tyler reporting a precipitation of two inches, Dallas 1.85, Weatherford 1.75 and Corsicana .85 of an inch, to say nothing of heavy rains elsewhere in the State. In not a few sections of Texas the fields are reported very grassy, and damage in the Western part of the State by boll worms is reported. The rainfall in Texas during the past week has been excessive. And while the cotton plant in many sections has made improvement within the last week or ten days, its condition is still undoubtedly backward as a rule, and there can be no question that the acreage has been reduced, and that the use of the fertilizers shows a very marked diminution, all of which it is believed will cut down the yield this season very materially. The decreased use of fertilizers of itself will delay the growth of the plant in many sections, it is believed to such an extent that the danger from frosts next Fall will be considerably increased.

The total visible supply of cotton for the world is 3 554,755 bales, of which 3,111,555 bales are American; against 3,114,090 bales and 2,512,990 bales respectively last year. Receipts of cotton this week at all interior towns 6,665 bales. Receipts from the plantations 5,261 bales. Crop in sight 9,587,132 bales.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

July Wheat, Oats and Corn Closed Lower on Better Crop Advices—Pork Products Firm and Higher.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CHICAGO, June 15.—Between the desperate efforts of "longs" to unload and persistent work of "shorts" to increase their lines, wheat had a sorry time to-day. The weakness of yesterday's session was carried to the curb, and was not yet exhausted when the market opened to-day. There was from 1c to 1¼c difference between the ending figures of yesterday and the first ones this morning, and it was not in favor of holders. Some of the hardened bulls sold out yesterday, and others followed their example to-day. The bears, who received such punishment only recently, were on hand to help along the decline. Linn sold unhesitatingly all the wheat that the crowd wanted and much that would rather done without. The crop news was still on the mend from the winter wheat section and scarcely open to improvement from the spring wheat country. July opened from 76⅛ to 76¼c, declined to 74¾c, closing at 74⅞—2⅝c lower than yesterday. Cash wheat was 2c lower than yesterday.

Corn traders were kept busy following the descending quotations on wheat. The weakness of the finer grade was irregular and irresistible and as no news favorable to prices came to hand, it was not difficult to establish a lower standard. July corn opened from 49⅜ to 49¼c, sold between 49⅜ and 48¾c, closing at the latter—1⅜c. lower than yesterday. Cash corn was weak and 1 to 1¼c. per bushel lower.

Oats—There was nothing in the news or situation to warrant oats in resisting the weakness that reached them from other markets. The sentiment was in accord with that shown by wheat and corn, a large quantity of long stuff seeking buyers. The close was ⅛ to ⅝c, lower than yesterday for July. Cash oats were quotable ¼ to ½c. per bushel lower.

Provisions again exhibited strength as compared with other articles on the floor. Hog market was firm, thereby enabling product to oppose the weak speculative feeling in other quarters. Business was still of light volume, very little being taken in the market. At the close July pork was 5c. higher than yesterday; July lard 2½ to 5c. and July ribs 5 to 7½c. higher.

MURDER AND ROBBERY.

Mrs. Pollard Killed and Her House Plundered.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

RICHMOND, VA., June 15.—A special to the Dispatch from Keysville, Charlotte county, says that Friday evening Mrs. Pollard, aged fifty, wife of E. S. Pollard, a well-to-do farmer residing at Fort Mitchell, that county, was murdered in her yard by being knocked in the head with an axe. Her head was beaten to a jelly. The object was robbery as the house was rifled and $60 stolen. Twenty-five men were working in a field some three hundred yards distant when the murder was committed. Circumstantial evidence points to two colored women who lived on the place.

At Williamsport, Pa., yesterday Mrs Nelson A. Byers and her four-year-old grandson, Nelson B. Allen, of Buffalo, were killed by being struck by a trolley car. Mrs. Byers was instantly killed, while the boy sustained a crushed skull and died an hour afterwards.

LATE FOREIGN NEWS.

GERMANY INCENSED AT THE ACTION OF FRANCE AND RUSSIA

In the Matter of the Chinese War Loan—Indications that the British Government Have Decided Upon Definite Action Against the Sultan of Turkey.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

BERLIN, June 15.—The Government desiring everything to go on nicely while the hob-nobbing with foreign representatives on the occasion of the Kiel receptions is on, the semi-official press remains uninspired as to the question how to deal with the developed aspects of the undoubted alliance between France and Russia. If the brief utterances which have been permitted to the newspapers could be construed into a guide as to the Emperor's opinions on the subject, it would seem that no great importance is attached to the Chinese loan recently floated in Paris and guaranteed by Russia. Still it is known beyond peradventure that the Foreign Office has sent a dispatch to St. Petersburg asking for explicit information in regard to the conditions under which the Russian Government has guaranteed the loan, and added to this assured fact it is asserted upon good authority that Germany accompanied the inquiry with a strong remonstrance against the manner in which the France-Russian entente was accomplished. The German banking firms having intimate relations with the far East have learned upon indisputable authority that the Russian Government advanced to the Government at Pekin during the time that the war between China and Japan was progressing, various sums of money aggregating a sufficient amount to cover the loan of £16,000,000 which the St. Petersburg Government guaranteed. It is alleged that upon the first occasion Russia advanced to China £5,000,000 and shortly afterwards £3,000,000, and followed these loans with smaller sums which make it appear that the so-called Chinese loan raised in Paris is merely a cancellation in a roundabout way of the indebtedness of China to Russia. The pretty full verified news that the St. Petersburg Government has for the past six months been conducting transactions in an underhand way with China has greatly added to the irritation which is felt in Government as well as in financial circles here. This feeling is especially strong among financiers, who have been awakened to consciousness that they have been duped and befooled into a long and useless series of negotiations with Paris, Pekin and St. Petersburg capitalists and bankers in regard to the loan which France and Russia eventually captured, and the result is that Berlin bankers, and for that matter the Berlin Government entertains a feeling of keen resentment over the manner in which they have been treated. The Russian National Bank, which has taken 6,000,000 pounds of the Chinese loan has been sounded upon the question of floating same of the new issue in Berlin, and has received a categorical refusal to comply with the requests made.

With a view of abating soreness which prevails here, the China Embassy was inspired yesterday to make an explicit contradiction of the allegations that any financial advance had been made to China by Russia during the progress of the Chino-Japanese war.

Among the semi-officially inspired newspapers, the Hamburg correspondent is the only one that is outspoken on the subject. The correspondent declares that the Russian coup will undoubtedly cause a feeling of lack of confidence among the Powers which will be as lasting as it will be disagreeable and it will certainly have its influence in future diplomatic transactions.

LONDON, June 15.—The developments which have manifested themselves since the Cabinet council which was held on Tuesday, indicate that the Government has decided upon taking some definite action against the Porte. The communications which have been sent to Russia and France by the Foreign Office, urge the necessity of making a formidable naval demonstration in the Bosphorus without delay. The suggestions made by Russia and France that a conference of the Powers be held, do not suit, as they are not in the line of Lord Roseberry's policy. It is plain that the Premier either wants to have Great Britain committed to a strong and practical policy of pro-Armenian intervention before the Conservatives get into office or else he perceives that a conference of the Powers might entrap England into a discussion of the question of her occupation of Egypt. The former might be desirable to the Liberals, but the latter would not be welcomed by any party or faction in the kingdom.

The Speaker in an article ostensibly based on information received from Constantinople, but really inspired by a Cabinet minister declares that a combined demonstration of the Powers is the only feasible and proper method of dealing with the Porte. The article declares that the Sultan is not the sole master of the situation as is generally believed. According to this statement the Sultan had actually prepared a reply to the identical note of the Powers accepting the terms laid down by them when he received warning that if he persisted in the course indicated by his reply he would unquestionably meet the fate of his uncle, Sultan Abdul-Aziz. In consequence of this the Sultan withdrew his answer. The gathering of the fleets at Constantinople, the Speaker adds, will have great influence upon the conspirators who are pulling strings reaching even to the innermost recesses of the imperial harem. These worthies are prepared to ridicule the idea of English pressure upon the Porte, and they are also prepared to assassinate the Sultan if he should dare to yield to outside influences. They will come to think differently, however, the Speaker says, if they see the combined ironclads representing the real force which they setting at defiance.

The Liberal organs generally assume that the defiant attitude taken by the Porte is due to a notion on the part of the British Government, which will involve a complete change in England's foreign policy. It is true that a small pro-Turkish party continues to exist among the Conservatives, but within a recent period extraordinary transformations of opinion in regard to the best means of dealing with the Eastern question have taken place among the leaders, and the rank and file of the Tory party, and although no authoritative pronunciamento has been issued from Lord Salisbury or any of his immediate followers, it is an open secret that the traditional policy concerning Turkey will be departed from when the Conservatives obtain office. Lord Salisbury may have no cut and dried plan, but the Conservative organs which reflect the opinions which prevail in the Carlton Club are now advocating a reconstruction of the Balkan Governments by permitting Bulgaria to absorb Macedonia and even Constantinople, giving Greece some extension of her frontiers and confining Moslem domination to a portion of Asia-Minor. This, of course, means war, but war is in the air.

Russia has effected another clever stroke with the Bank of France, which has agreed to receive Russian bonds and issue them against Bank of France certificates. The Russian Treasury thus receives this all-powerful support of the Government Bank, and through its medium will be able to place Russian stock all over France. Nothing has been heard of a Russian return for the concession except an order that the Bank of Russia shall accept French bank notes as equal to gold throughout Russia.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Revenue Cutters Detailed to Patrol the South Atlantic Coast—Missionary Advices from China—Assistant Secretary McAdoo Will Leave Monday to Inspect Naval Militia Along the Coast.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Minister Denby telegraphed the State Department that there has been no loss of life among the missionaries in the province of Se Chuen.

The Treasury Department has decided to strengthen the revenue cutter patrol along the Atlantic coast from Charleston to Mobile by ordering the cutters Morrill, McLane and Forward to patrol those waters. The reason assigned for this movement is that it is necessary to keep a closer lookout for vessels coming from Cuba, which might bring yellow fever. At the same time the revenue cutters will co-operate with the United States steamer Raleigh in preventing fillibustering expeditions from leaving the United States for Cuba. In connection with the assignment of these revenue cutters to patrol duty, Surgeon General Wyman addressed a letter to Secretary Carlisle, calling attention to the danger of the introduction of yellow fever into Florida by means of smuggling fishing smacks arriving from Cuba. He urged that three revenue cutters be detailed to inspect all such vessels, and also asked for four additional sanitary inspectors, to be stationed at the points most frequented by these smugglers, the vessels not attempting to make entry in compliance with our shipping laws.

Assistant Secretary McAdoo expects to leave Washington to-morrow on an inspection tour. It is Mr. McAdoo's intention, if the arrangements can be completed, to visit the naval militia along the coast in all of those States where the same are well organized. As at present each State selects its own time for annual drills, and these outings are irregular as to time. The only way they can be inspected on this trip is to go to the headquarters of the organizations themselves. It is naturally stimulating to the organizations to have their headquarters visited by a national ship, and feel that they have the distinct personal interest of the heads of the Navy Department. The visit, therefore, is productive of more good if made on a dispatch boat than to go by inland ways. As to the length of the cruise and the time he will be away will be guided entirely by circumstances, but he will return here, at any rate, in the early part of July, and will remain at the Department from that time during the Summer, and in the absence of Mr. Herbert.

The programme at present is to leave here to-morrow, inspect the naval militia at Baltimore on Monday afternoon, and then, possibly, go from there to Wilmington, N. C., and thence to Philadelphia, New York, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Boston. Circumstances, however, may cut this trip entirely out, so that after the inspection at Baltimore he may conclude to go with the Dolphin on to New York and New London, where she lies during the summer months when not otherwise in use, or, if time presses, he may take the train at Norfolk and go to Wilmington, N. C. and returning, resume his trip by water to New York.

TRAFFIC ARRANGEMENTS

Important Meeting of Representatives of Southern Transportation Companies.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, June 15.—A meeting of the Southern Railway & Steamship Association was held at the Waldorf Hotel this morning. The delegates present consisted of the executive officers of the various Southern transportation companies. The object of the meeting was to form a new freight traffic agreement covering competitive business for the year beginning August 1st next and expiring by limitation July 31st, 1896. Among those present were Samuel Spencer of this city, president of the Southern Railway; Sol. Haas of Washington, President Spencer's assistant; H. M. Comer of Savannah, receiver of the Central Railroad of Georgia; Thomas K. Scott of Augusta, general manager of the Georgia Pacific; George C. Smith of Atlanta, president of the Atlanta & West Point Railroad; Milton H Smith of Louisville, president of the Louisville & Nashville; S. R. Knott of Louisville, vice-president of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad; E. St. John of Portsmouth, Va., vice-president of the Seaboard Air Line; H. T. Smith of Cincinnati, general freight agent of the Queen & Crescent Railroad; T. M. Emerson of Wilmington, N. C., traffic manager of the Atlantic Coast Line; Col. E. B. Stahlman of Nashville, commissioner of the Southern Railway & Steamship Company. W. G. Ervin, vice president of the Plant system presided.

The members remained in executive session until 1.45 o'clock this afternoon, discussing proposed changes to be incorporated in the new agreement. As they could agree upon no definite schedule to-day, the officials present decided to postpone action until Monday next at 10.30 o'clock, when another meeting will be held at the Waldorf.

RANSOM AND BUTLER.

They Shook Hands at the Yarboro in Raleigh Yesterday.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

RALEIGH, June 15.—Senator Marion Butler and Minister Ransom shook hands in the lobby of the Yarboro to-day. Mr. Ransom had never seen Mr. Butler to know him, and turning to a friend asked: "Is that Senator Marion Butler?" The two had arrived on the same train, ridden to the hotel in the same bus and registered on the same book. Minister Ransom said he was some better, but not well. He has not recovered from his fall some months ago, and the attitude of Mexico added too much heart-stimulation to a condition already enfeebled. This was followed by a billious attack, which forced the Minister home. He left to-day and will stop a few days at his home in Northampton, after which he will go the Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs for a month.

Senator Butler said Tilman's speech at Memphis was bristling with energy, and that Turpie's was read and hardly heard; that he (Butler) had cut loose from the Republican and Democratic parties. When asked how he reconciled this with fusion, he smiled and asked: "Do you expect me to answer this?"

THE PRIZE RING.

EDDIE PIERCE KNOCKED OUT BY YOUNG CORBETT.

Principals and Seconds Arrested.—The Dixon-Erne Contest Prevented By the Police—Poor Attendance of Spectators.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

SEASIDE ATHLETIC CLUB, CONEY ISLAND, N. Y. June 15.—That the attitude of the authorities towards the management of the Seaside Athletic Club was not without its effect on the public was plainly manifest by the size of the attendance to-night, scarcely 1,000 persons being present in the arena at the opening bout—that of Young Corbett, of San Francisco, and Eddie Pierce, of New York. In the third round Corbett got in a right hand push on the jaw and knocked Pierce down and out. The police immediately arrested the principals and seconds. Jim Hurst, the referee, and Bob Stoll, the time-keeper were also arrested.

The police refused to allow the Dixon-Erne bout to go on at first, but after a few moments decided to reconsider, and at 9.20 Erne entered the ring. Dixon followed soon afterwards. Then announcer Burns stepped into the ring and said that Dixon and Erne were ready to fulfill their contracts, but as the people refused to allow the bout to proceed there would be no contest. Dixon's manager also addressed the crowd, saying: "I am here with my man and ready to proceed, if the club will undertake to give bonds protecting my man in the Courts."

On behalf of the club it was stated that it was ready to protect the man.

A few minutes later Jim Kennedy, the club manager, had a talk with the managers of Erne and Dixon and it was decided to proceed. Parson Davis was called upon to act as referee, Hurst having been taken to the station house. Kennedy then stepped into the ring and Dixon and Erne proceeded to strip. Thereupon Inspector Murphy and Captain Clayton again climbed through the ropes and announced their decision of arresting the men the moment they began to spar. This was final. Dixon and Erne then shook hands and left the ring, while the spectators slowly and sullenly disappeared.

WARM WIRELETS.

The United States squadron which will take part in the ceremonies attending the opening of the North Sea Baltic canal entered the harbor of Kiel yesterday.

Admiral Kirkland has cabled the Navy Department of the arrival of the United States cruisers New York, San Francisco and Columbia at Kiel, to take part in the Baltic canal opening.

The Enterprise Manufacturing Company, one of the largest cotton mills in Georgia, has resolved to increase its capital stock, not to exceed $500,000 additional. With this increase the Enterprise will have 75,000 spindles.

Joseph T. Tunis, a wealthy resident of Norfolk, Va., died Friday night on board the steamer Georgia, while en route from Norfolk to Baltimore. His death was due to asthma and liver trouble. He was 50 years of age.

Guy Wilson, press agent of the League of American Wheelmen National Meet, with Thomas Eck arranged a match mile race between Arthur A. Zimmerman and John S. Johnson, to be run at Asbury Park during the July meet for $10,000.

A special from Massillon, Ohio, says: Carl Browne and Miss Mamie Coxey, erstwhile Goddess of Peace of the Commonweal, were secretly married Friday evening. The bride and groom separated after the ceremony with the expectation of keeping the fact to themselves until the 4th of July when they will have another and spectacular marriage in Washington.

LIABLE TO INDICTMENT.

Lawyers, Doctors, Dentists and Hotel and Boarding House Keepers Who Have Not Paid Their Special Tax Liable to Indictment.

The Raleigh News and Observer yesterday says: The State Treasurer has decided that the special tax, levied by Section 34 and 38 of the Revenue Act, is in force from and after its ratification, and that all boarding house and hotel keepers, doctors, lawyers and dentists who have not paid the tax of 50 cents a room and the $10.00 license are liable to indictment for doing business without obtaining license.

This is a far reaching decision, and those interested would do well to pay up at once, or they may find themselves in a bad predicament. It is their duty to pay this new tax to the sheriff of their respective counties, and obtain their license.

It is a monstrous law, the product of Fusion, but this in an era of reform, we may remark in passing.

MERCER & GAYLORD

ARE GIVING

Bargains

That will Astonish you more than Ever Before.

ALTHOUGH the advance in Leather and Shoes continues all over this land and country, especially at the great manufacturing centers, we had bought out the entire Shoe Stock of H. C. Evans, 115 Princess street, and had placed contracts with manufacturers at old prices, before the rise began, which enables us to hold the prices down, within easy reach of all classes, for some time to come.

We come as near fitting the fancy, the foot and the pocket, as any Shoe Store in the land, when the above three essentials must be met in one fit.

It is useless for us to devote much of this space in quoting prices, but we urge you to call at our place and see the Bargains as they are.

We have Baby Shoes, yet, which are going at 10c per pair. Some Ladies' Button and Lace at 50c. Some Ladies' and Misses' Slippers at 35c (yes, leather, at that). Women's Web Slippers at 10c. Men's Calf Boots at $1.50. Men's Heavy Boots at $1.25—and many lots of other goods in like proportion.

We cordially invite you to examine our stock, and respectfully solicit your patronage.
